

10 years from now, where do you see yourself?

One of the useful purposes of writing poetry is to put words on paper that capture emotions. Hopefully, the words are few and the rhythm or flow can tap into your heart and change your life. After many years of praying and if you find yourself still single, the following poem may help you.

These words may bring a suppressed feeling to light or cause you think and change your life.

Before we go much further, please understand that everyone has both real haves and wants. When we make a list... There are items that are a must have or nice to have and do not want. For a brief moment, please understand there is not one flaw even God Himself cannot handle. Even the worst of sinners can come clean and real change only takes a second, if you're ready.

What starts the attraction - For some it's the looks, a funny comment, or a non-stop smile. So the two begin dating - You could see each other every day, once a week, or when you can. Everything you learn and experience will - Draw you together, have no affect, or pull you apart. We live in a world full of people. Yes, they can have a real effect on us... How do we deal with it?

Some singles do not want to be single and most definitely don't see the future as forever single. From years ago, there was a friend who mistrusted men because the family sexually abused her. One friend sought out her girlfriend's approval, if the photo of her date doesn't cut it he's gone. What if your parents do not approve can you pack your bags and say, "I'm going to miss them."

It could be that God wants you to have a man who will care for you, and bring you no harm. It could be that God wants you to have a man where the beauty is inside and others can't see it. And it could be that God wants you to have a family with 3 children, before your parents pass on. Dating, engagement, and marriage has their risks and rewards... Does God want you to be single?

Search for the correct answers, read through the words again, and somehow find the strength. Any future relationship will be between (the man, the woman, and of course our heavenly father.) Yes friends, family, neighbors, and coworkers may try to interfere for their own personal reasons. (Today if you are 20, 30, 40, or 50... 10 years from now, where do you see yourself married or single?)
