

A Few More Days

Workers work because there is work and some begin after others are done. This door is in the process of being installed because the walls are up and solid. And before the walls became vertical, the house plans and foundation were done. Then before this could happen, our new homeowner's financing became rock solid.

If this was your bedroom door, how many youngsters will walk through this door? One day, you might be passing through this door on your way to a volleyball game. And on another day, you could be trying to help a child figure out their career path. Then again, you wouldn't be faced with such rewards without a mom and dad first.

Think back if you can, who was it that said hello first. How did the two of you meet? When did you realize that he or she was the one you'd stay with the rest of your days! (Dating, marriage, honeymoon, your life before children and then life with children) At the end, what will God give you? Eternal life is just a gift in a few more days.

Ray House 2004