

Believe In Him & Things Work Out In The End

Have you ever just sat there and watched the fish in a fish tank?
Some of the fish just seem to hover around in one particular spot.
Some of the fish slowly move around visiting all parts of the tank.
A few of the fish every so often make a quick dash for a certain spot.

If you put a large variety of fish in a tank, they all react differently.
Some of the fish keep to themselves unconcerned about the other fish.
Some of the fish are very sociable and will swim right next to other fish.
A few of the fish often have a bad tendency to push around the smaller fish.

As I sit here in a nice restaurant, pondering how we humans react to each other.
Some of us hover around keeping to ourselves unconcerned about everyone else.
Some of us move around visiting/socializing creating new friendships with others.
A few of us make a quick dash with a bad tendency to push around everyone else.

The fish tank is made out of pure glass [We can see clearly what every fish is doing!]
The same is true in our relationships [We too can see clearly what everyone is doing!]
Some keep to themselves ~ Some create new friendships ~ A few push everyone around.
How does God want us to be around others? Believe in Him & things work out in the end.
