

How long have you been praying about your wedding?
It is a day our Savior unites two people to become one.

Now, here's some words you may not of heard before...
Marriages last when they are headed in the right direction.

What destruction of values or mistakes ~ Can destroy your relationship?

- | | |
|------------------------|--|
| Sexual problems | No one can imagine this happening to their marriage.
Make it your mission to remain faithful to each other. |
| Financial problems | In the near future, will you be able to afford a haircut?
Please adjust your expenses to match your income. |
| Family interference | All of us deeply love our family -and- they love us too!
Consider other's advice, but trust your own judgment. |
| Emotional difficulties | Going forward, how will you respect/treat each other?
Beware of anger, jealousy and other things that destroy |

It's troublesome to hear one say, "I did not know such things could happen?"

If the Lord blesses you with children, then rejoice when you hear them call you Mother & Father. Children are a gift from God, so embrace them with love. Be mindful to teach your children and bring them up in the way of the Lord for your children will carry your last name and carry forward His handiwork.

And if you get into an argument it doesn't matter who is at fault. Forgive one another before you go to sleep. Or you'll be even more upset for days/years.

With a final thought of your new Shared life together, live each day as friends instead as enemies. You have principles, so remember to be merciful for as long as you have each other. Be careful to not cause hardship for one other, instead support and lean on each other. Families fit perfect in our heavenly Father's plan.
Gain all the strength you will need by praying together to the Lord for protection.
