

Until The Last Harvest Time

Seeds planted into the ground, when watered begin to sprout,
Eventually making their way to the surface they break through.
Their leaves unfold and catch the light rays bringing forth growth,
Then everyone smiles and celebrates what God has brought to life.

The garden is designed with each area having its own unique purpose.
One row grows carrots, another has lettuce, and one has peppers too.
The planner even put the fence to good use growing cucumbers, and grapes.
Onions/garlic, tomatoes, and watermelons are planted and also nurtured too.

Each plant grows, puts on flowers, and slowly brings forth tiny small fruit.
Look closely and you can see clusters of grapes barely noticeable to the eye.
Without a steady source of water / fertilizer / and sunshine they will surely die.
This Sunday morning, you are hanging out with a cool bunch that's alive in Christ!
And we're praying, you'll be back for each call to worship until the last harvest time.

Ray House 2003