When You're Apart From Him

For many years, you have tried to visualize him.

Some have imagined a man built like an action movie star.

(A perfect body sculpted/ripping with muscles all over the place.)

Some individuals and how they're trying to become known can be deceiving!

This man you have dreamed/thought about for attractions sake might have altered himself with drugs to where both he and you cannot bear children. Are looks important enough for you to sacrifice the dream of motherhood?

Upon spending 54 years together with the same man can you imagine...

Having some children, grandchildren, and then some great grandchildren?

There are great novels written and stories told about such compassionate families.

(And pictures at family reunions are simply just a small reflection of their love.)

You can wait for beauty/strength/and fame or have comfort/peace/and warmth.

In what year or when will you find the man for you??? Could God be saying...

Don't worry my child, I've got my arms all around you let Me be in control.

Please don't limit God, or yourself, and your future husband's many years

To be with you, plus your children's un-heard happiness that's waiting on you.

(For each prayer said, there has to be action or motion for it to occur and take place.)

Will yours become real today, tomorrow, this week, or this year? Basically that

Depends on you; hopefully, you are ready to find the man God wants for you?

May our heavenly Father bless you with a husband, who will love you /and/

When you're apart from him...½ of your body will feel like it's missing.
